Policemen from the Fifteenth, Nineteenth, Eleventh, Tenth and Fourteenth precincts went before the Grand Jury to-day and gave testimony against some of the dives exposed by THE EVENING WORLD.

Capt. Reily, McCullagh, Ryan, Thompson, Meakin and Sergt. Creedon were also present and held a consultation with District-Attorney Neill.

At 1:15 o'clock the Grand Jury came into Part I, before Judge Fitzgerald and handed in several indictments.

It was reported about that several of the outlaws had been indicted. The officials, however, declined to give out the names of the indicted persons, hinting that it might prevent arrests from being made.

The other five, "Honest" John Kelly, Mr. McCormick, Mr. Pickwick Scribner, Mr. Jim Sullivan and Mr. Excise Exchange Davis, made a weak bluff at opposing THE EVENING WORLD's crusade, but the others were taken into custody.

White drunken men and women were indulging in indecent orgies, Capt. Ryan and forty of his Mercer street policemen raided the place and arrested forty-four people, including outlaw himself.

Over on the Bowery, too, the law was openly defied by outlaws of a somewhat lesser calibre, John H. McGurk, who was just beginning to acquire notoriety as an outlaw when THE EVENING WORLD's searchlight was turned on the metropolitan dens, has been delving on his oars, so to speak, in a half-hearted attempt to do business in opposition to Mr. Carey Welch and the others.

Friday night his apprehension was so great that in company with his greater brothers in wickedness he closed his entire establishment.

Last night again witnessed the closing of every dive annex to the establishments of the Big Eight of New York's outlaws. Frank Stevenson's "Side" on Bleeker street, Tom Gould's den at Sixth avenue and Twenty-third street and Carey Welch's "Hole in the Wall" on Fourth avenue, were each and all shut up as tight as a drum making admission impossible without the use of a battering ram.

The other five, "Honest" John Kelly, Mr. McCormick, Mr. Pickwick Scribner, Mr. Jim Sullivan and Mr. Excise Exchange Davis, made a weak bluff at opposing THE EVENING WORLD's crusade, but the others were taken into custody.
